Turn Your Idea Into an Innovation

Kimberly Eddleston (Northeastern University)

KEYWORDS: Entrepreneurship, Innovation, Product Development.

Many innovations have started with people who were not engineers, scientists or coders, and had no idea how to turn their great idea into a marketable product or service. Fortunately, today's dreamers have more options than ever to build and fund product development, even if they have limited resources. In this interview with EIX's Kimberly Eddleston, Northeastern University Professor Tucker Marion, co-author of the book "The Innovation Navigator," shares his thoughts on how anyone -- from a sole proprietor to an employee within a large established company -- can innovate and launch a business.

Link to video

Copyright © 2020 The Authors. Entrepreneur & Innovation Exchange is published at EIX.org. This is an open access article under the terms of the Creative Commons Attribution-NoDerivs License, which permits use and distribution in any medium, provided the original work is properly cited and no modifications or adaptations are made. View EIX.org Authorship Terms at https://eix.org/terms